Disclosure

Disclosure on Back-Testing

Back-testing is the application of a quantitative model to historical market data to generate hypothetical performance over a prior period. Use of back-tested data has inherent limitations, including:

- Results do not reflect actual trading outcomes or the impact of material economic and market conditions on the decision-making process. They are achieved retrospectively and may benefit from hindsight.
- Calculation of back-tested performance is based on assumptions integral to the model, which may or may not be testable, and therefore carry risk of losses.
- Actual performance may differ significantly from back-tested results. Back-tested results are not adjusted for the reinvestment of dividends or other income and, unless stated otherwise, do not include transaction costs.
- Back-tested returns do not represent actual returns and should not be interpreted as an indication of such.

2. Disclosure on Ratings

- CMP (Current Market Price): Live trading price of a stock at the time of recommendation.
- Entry Price: Specific price at which a stock is recommended to be bought or sold.
- Buy: Recommendation to purchase a stock expecting its price to rise.
- Sell: Recommendation to sell a stock expecting its price to fall.
- Hold: Neutral recommendation to neither buy nor sell, suggesting the stock will perform in line with the market.
- Book Partially: Exiting a portion of your position to lock in some profit while keeping the rest.
- Exit: Recommendation to cut the entire position, either to take profit or limit losses.
- Book Loss: Exiting the entire position to realize accumulated losses.
- Book Full Profit (Book Profit): Exiting the entire position to realize all accumulated gains.
- Revise Stop Loss (SL): Adjusting a pre-set loss-limiting price.
- Trailing Stop Loss: Adjusting a pre-set loss-limiting price, usually to protect profits as stock price increases.
- Revise Target: Adjusting the expected future price of a stock based on new information or price action.
- 1st / 2nd / 3rd Targets: Staggered price goals for a stock, indicating points to partially book profits.
- ROI (Return on Investment): Percentage showing profit made compared to the initial investment.
